My Life in Photography ~ Five Decades

Tuesday, February 18th, 7:00pm, Beachwood Library

A note from our speaker:

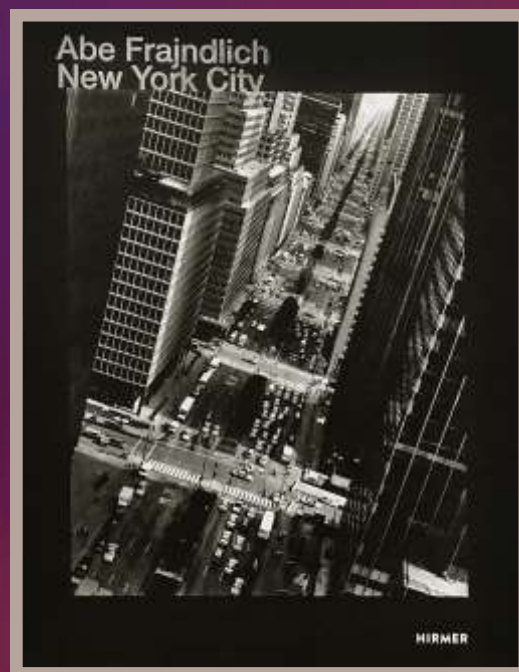

I started to make photographs seriously in 1970, and this year, 2020, will be fifty years.

I still love the medium, as it has been my passion and I have earned my living from it.

My studies were in literature, both undergraduate and graduate, and after starting to make photographs I have done a number of books, which I will show images from and examples of, as well.

My most recent book is:

*New York City,
Just like I pictured it*

And I will show images from that series as well as the one that precedes it,

*Penelope's Hungry Eyes,
Portraits of master photographers
from around the world*

My website is www.abefoto.com
and people can get a sense of my work and of my story by looking around on the site.

Abe Frajndlich

NOTE: Abe will be giving a program on Ilse Bing, Queen of the Leica, at the Cleveland Museum of Art on Wednesday, April 29th. Please see the CMA calendar for more information about the artist and about the exhibit of her work.

FINDING YOUR CREATIVE SELF presented by distinguished professional photographer Doug Hansgate

The second of our CVCC Fall workshops was held during a cold weekend in December. It was another outstanding learning experience with 2 weekend days of classroom time including 3 hands-on shooting opportunities which emphasized portrait, landscape or night photography. Many thanks to Chad Barr who had the idea, then planned and worked hard to manage the entire, richly rewarding weekend.

On the following pages you will find a number of photos taken by attendees. Again, there were many aiming their cameras at the same scene, so what we are representing is the variety and beauty that an enthusiastic group with new skills can capture.
